

GET READY FOR 2022 BARGAINING

Sharp Delays Coming to the Table

After multiple attempts to schedule bargaining sessions with Sharp management, we have confirmed a limited number of meetings dates. We offered management 54 meeting dates. The union does not understand Sharp's delays, but will continue to offer multiple meeting dates with the hope that they will take a more serious approach to setting a productive negotiation schedule.

Current Schedule

June 29:
Economic Subcommittee
July 6, July 21, & July 28:
Contract Bargaining

The True Cost of Being a Hero

Our battle against the COVID-19 pandemic will bring lasting changes to the nursing profession and to the future of health care. After the accolades, car parades, and food donations for front-line heroes, we returned to units short on staffing, personal protective gear, and hope. We continue to show true heroism by collectively standing up for our patients and our professional practice, and caring for our community.

Economic Subcommittee Opens Talks

This round of contract negotiations is scheduled to kick off on June 29. The parties have agreed to form an economic subcommittee for this round of negotiations that will meet to begin looking at and discussing the major economic conditions of the agreement. These meetings and conversations will occur in conjunction with traditional bargaining sessions. We have and will continue pushing Sharp on the need to improve the retention and recruitment of RNs by improving the economic provisions of the contract. Far too many of our colleagues have left for more generous compensation and better working conditions.
